Following Hurricane Katrina, estimates of damages in Alabama have been assessed at about $700 million. Although we were fortunate to not experience it's full force, it is clear that Katrina still caused a tremendous amount of damage in Alabama. The final total for financial loss estimates may not be available for several weeks, but I would like to provide you with an overview of some of the actual damages.

Crops-There have been major agricultural losses in southwest Alabama due to hurricanes in the past two years during the harvest of bumper crops. Because there was an almost total loss of crops consecutively, commodity program payments may be reduced this year and in future years. Cotton, soybeans, corn, and peanuts suffered varying degrees of damage due to salt-water and wind. In some cases, cotton damaged by Katrina must still be picked even though the remaining cotton will not cover the harvesting and ginning costs. Most fall vegetables are raised through plasticulture and were severely, if not completely destroyed.

Farm Structures-Poultry houses and other farm buildings suffered moderate damage. Some hay and on-farm storage facilities were damaged.

Livestock & Poultry-There was very little loss to livestock, but in poultry there were about 20,000 dead birds.

Nursery Industry-Nurseries had established fall flowering plants prior to Katrina. Almost all plants were destroyed. Many greenhouses were severely damaged.

Seafood Industry-There was major damage to the shrimping fleets. Seafood processing facilities in the Bayou La Batre area were totally destroyed.

Hurricane

Several pet food companies have joined together to provide much needed assistance for evacuated and displaced dogs and cats throughout the southeast region. Butler Animal Health Supply, Ralston Purina, Royal Canin, and Sunshine Mills have provided and distributed shipments of dog and cat food to animal shelters in as many as 12 states during the few weeks following Hurricane Katrina.

The companies organized their relief effort to give assistance to shelters that are housing and feeding animals after so many people had to abandon or kennel their pets during evacuations. Over 80,000 pounds of dog and cat food has been distributed through each state's veterinary medical association and vendors.

munity for providing much needed assistance to evacuees and their pets," stated State Veterinarian Dr. Tony Frazier.

Many companies and area veterinarians have also been helping displaced veterinarians find new practices. If you are a displaced veterinarian and need assistance in finding work in Alabama, or if you are a veterinarian and could offer employment to a displaced veterinarian, please contact the State Veterinarian's office at 334/240-7253.

Timber-Estimated damages are at $200 million.

Debris-Throughout the area, lots of debris was scattered across farming operations. Clean up for Katrina, Dennis, and Ivan is estimated to cost in excess of $25 million.

Fuel-There has been some difficulty with on-farm fuel supplies, however, after the first week, the fuel situation stabilized.

A lot of people are still asking the question, what is next? When you have gone through such a loss, it can be hard to hear someone tell you to call a 1-800 number and be patient. That is one reason we held the Alabama Agricultural Relief Fund Concert last month in Montgomery. With great generosity, the city turned out to support victims of Katrina and raised over $100,000 in one night which will be distributed directly to victims of Katrina, including farmers and producers, and organizations directly assisting with hurricane relief.

Not only is the department trying to provide financial assistance outside of the normal avenues, we are working with USDA, FSA, and other organizations to ensure that the issues that matter to agriculture are addressed. I have personally talked with Secretary Mike Johanns and agriculture commissioners around the country about our most important issues to be sure that all of our agricultural assets are protected by a disaster relief bill. We have been talking about things like loan restructuring, crop disaster payments, increased efficiency in distributing funds, and including assistance for nurseries and plasticulture.

We have all learned over the last few weeks that sometimes the government can be unprepared for the unexpected crisis. I want to be sure that our agricultural industry is protected and that the department is ready to help you in any way that we can. I want to be able to provide farmers and producers with the resources they need when they need it most and we are willing to work hard and in unorthodox ways to make it happen.

Catch a glimpse of farming in the future this October at the South's biggest and best farm show. It's the Sunbelt Ag Exposition, North America's Premier Farm Show, a show that, year-after-year, delivers way more than what it promises.

The Expo is the world's largest farm show with on-site row crops and field demonstrations. During the show's three days, Oct. 18-20, the latest technology from the agricultural industry will be on full display near Moultrie, Georgia, for all to see and evaluate.

Each year, the Expo showcases forward-looking farming practices for visitors from throughout the Southeast, the U.S. and other parts of the world. "Our exhibitors represent the best that industry has to offer," says Expo Director Chip Blalock. "Whether you are looking for agricultural equipment, services or information, you will find it here at the Expo. More than 1,100 exhibitors are expected this year, and many have come back year after year since the first Expo in 1978.

The Expo is planning a new event this year, one that will give farmers valuable insight on what they can expect from changes in farm policy. Check the Expo's Web site (www.sunbeltexpo.com) for more details.

Expo is the essence of farming, yet it is much more. For instance, if you're interested in forestry, this show is for you. Nowhere else will you see more portable sawmills and related equipment than at Expo. You'll see exhibit sections that appeal to farmers and non-farmers alike. Some of these include all terrain vehicles, pickup and automotive, lawn and gardening, hunting and fishing, family living and a daily parade of antique tractors.

Eight outstanding farmers will be recognized as being among the best in their states. And one of these eight will be presented with the farming profession's highest honor, the Lancaster/Sunbelt Expo Southeastern Farmer of the Year award.

Precision ag technology returns with another strong showing. Site-specific, precision farming takes the guesswork out of planting, spraying and a host of other farm chores. And Expo has helped nurture this technology from its early experimental stages until now when it has become a must-have for modern farmers.

Each October, the Expo's 600-acre working farm hosts a wide array of new machinery in the popular harvesting and tillage demonstrations. The Expo's major crops, cotton, peanuts and hay, will all be in peak condition for show time harvesting. A new combine from Brazil will help harvest some of the Expo peanuts. A John Deere picker will harvest cotton planted in 15-inch rows. All of this, and more will take place in a realistic farm setting so farmers can get a first-hand view of the machines in motion and draw their own conclusions.

Special areas on the farm are set aside for Extension demonstrations. These plots feature innovative crop production methods and new crop varieties, many with biotech traits aimed at better insect and weed control.

Animal agriculture is also well represented. Cattlemen will see presentations on hay quality. Others will cover national animal identification, a crucial step in protecting individual herds and the nation's food supply from dangerous diseases.

The Expo's permanent home is Spence Field, a former airbase on 1,680 acres. The Expo is located four miles southeast of U.S. Hwy. 319 on Georgia Hwy. 133. Show hours are 8:30 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday, and 8:30 a.m. until 4:00 p.m. on Thursday. Admission is $5 per person per day, with children ages 6 and under admitted free with a parent.

For more information, check the Expo Web site: www.sunbeltexpo.com, or contact Sunbelt Expo by e-mail at: info@sunbeltexpo.com, by phone at 229/985-1968, or by writing to: 290-G Harper Blvd., Moultrie, GA 31788.

Cuban Trade Mission

The Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries' International Trade Section led a group of Alabama businesses to Cuba to participate in a trade mission in late August. While there, they met with executives of Alimport, Cuba's single largest importer of food supplies, and signed a mutual agreement to use the facilities at the Port of Mobile for the movement of US licensed cargoes. The cargoes would include: 20,000 MT of frozen poultry, 30,000 MT of forest products, and agricultural food products sent to Cuba. Additionally, there were discussions on expanding and increasing cargo movement through the Alabama State Port Authority, with emphasis on lumber, utility poles, wheat, corn, soybean, cotton and other grain products.

OCTOBER

BEEF MONTH

In Alabama — Enjoy Beef Every Day!

Florala Farmers Market

Three years ago the Floral Historical Society graciously purchased an adjacent lot and with the Covington County Commission's help improved and transformed this lot into a site for the Floral Farmers Market.

Recently, an effort was made to further improve the site by providing a building to shelter the producers and buyers from the elements. This effort was initiated by Kerry Stewart, Floral Chamber President, Harold Elmore, County Commissioner District 3, and Charles Simon, County Extension Agent.

A letter requesting funds from the Department of Agriculture and Industries to build a 40 ft. by 60 ft. barn structure for the farmers market site was written and signed by the group as well as Danny Franklin, Mayor of Floral and Linda Suggs, President of the Floral Historical Society.

The Department of Agriculture and Industries has determined that it will be able to provide funds to build the structure. "Without these folks working together, this would not be possible," said Commissioner Ron Sparks. "We are proud to be able to help them get this project off the ground."

Product Spotlight

The department has committed to highlight an Alabama food producer/manufacturer each month to inform you of the vast array of quality products produced and sold in Alabama. What better brand name to start this program other than Golden Flake.

Golden Flake potato chips have long been the Favorite Snack of Alabamians. Known for quality, freshness and flavor, Golden Flake serves over 6,000 Alabama outlets each week so the people of Alabama are always in arms reach of Golden Flake when they get that snacking urge. The Golden Flake tradition began as Magic City Foods of Birmingham in 1923. Today Golden Flake serves 12 southeastern states with an extensive product line. They have approximately 600 Alabamians producing, selling and servicing Golden Flake Snacks each day to insure that each bag purchased meets customer expectations. Today, more than ever, Golden Flake's commitment and attention to detail, to taste, and to what their customers want has not changed, so pick up a bag today, you know it's the best because it's Alabama Made!

On the Header:

Pictured on the header this month is a photo taken of apples grown by Bob and Carol Deutscher on their farm, Crow Mountain Orchard, located in Fackler, Alabama. Crow Mountain Orchard supplied 3,000 cases of apples that were served to Alabama school children last month as a part of the Farm to School Program.

Check out the department's new website www.agi.alabama.gov

The screenshot shows the homepage of the Alabama Department of Agriculture & Industries (AGI). The header includes navigation links: HOME, SEARCH, MY ACCOUNT, and a tagline "serving alabama's farmers & consumers every day". The main banner features the word "Alabama" in a large script font and "department of AGRICULTURE & INDUSTRIES" in a smaller font. Below the banner is a menu with links: ABOUT US, DIVISIONS, AG NEWS, AG KIDS, AG LINKS, FORMS, and DIRECTORY. A "You Are Here: AGI Home Page" breadcrumb is visible. The main content area is divided into two columns. The left column features a large photo of a group of people at a concert, with the headline "Alabama Agriculture Relief Fund Concert Raises Over $100,000" and a brief description of the event. The right column is titled "In The News" and contains three smaller news items: "Sparks announces new 'Alabama A+' campaign", "Sparks leads agribusiness representatives on a trade mission to West Africa", and "Justin wins $1000 for growing 31.1 pound cabbage". A "Product Spotlight" section is also visible at the bottom left of the screenshot.

National Market News Association Presents Award

David Gonsoulin, director of the Department of Agriculture and Industries' Market News Section, received the National Market News Association's "Distinguished Service Award" last month. The Distinguished Service Award is given to individuals in recognition of leadership in their profession and for encouragement and support for the Market News Services. Gonsoulin received the award at the National Market News Association workshop in Atlanta, Georgia.

The department's Market News section provides unbiased livestock market information for farmers/ranchers, interested parties and industries. This information is distributed and broadcast daily and summarized on a weekly basis. Market News is currently available on livestock, grain, and hay commodities sold within the state and nation.

Gonsoulin has served as the federal Officer in Charge (OIC) for Alabama's Market News office since 1984. He began his career in Livestock Market News via meat grading in 1974. After training in Columbus, Ohio, he gained experience in Oklahoma

City and Amarillo before assuming responsibilities in Memphis, Tennessee and later in Peoria, Illinois. His duties ranged from doing radio broadcasts to accepting cattle futures. Since accepting his current OIC position, Gonsoulin has continually sought to improve and expand one of the oldest federal-state programs in the country. He has constantly pushed the envelope to develop new avenues for market news and is always seeking to improve methods of dissemination to better inform and educate the producers in Alabama.

Under Gonsoulin's guidance the program has expanded into hay and goat reporting and currently issues 37 market reports each week including a weekly summary report mailed to 2,500 recipients. His easy going "give them the credit, I'll take the blame" style brings out the best in those around him and has fostered respect and support from all segments of Alabama's agricultural community. This support has been evident in the many joint activities undertaken between the Market News office and industry. His leadership has directly affected the programs ability to host regional livestock correlations, the National Livestock Grading workshop, and the National Market News Association Conference.

Maintaining the balancing act of being a federal employee, overseeing a state program, and working with ever changing elected state officials requires more than just being a good market reporter. David manages it with ease by being a very knowledgeable market reporter, a good teacher, a reluctant politician, and a great hands-on type leader.

Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries Ron Sparks stated, "We are fortunate to have someone with such knowledge and experience overseeing the critical activities of our Market News Section."
